SAMUDRA MANTHAN AND VISHNU'S KURMA AVATARA

By Svava Vashist

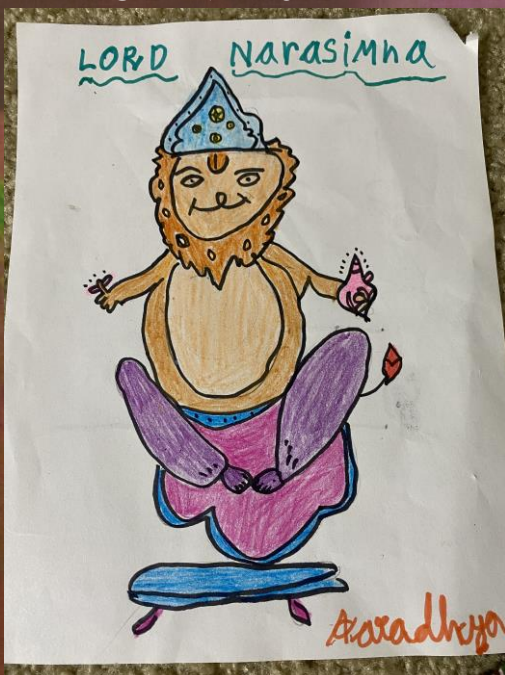

One day a sage gave a garland to Indra. Indra put it on his elephant's trunk. Unfortunately, the elephant threw it on the ground. In anger, the sage cursed Indra and all the other devas to lose their power. Soon all the Asuras won all battles against the devas and took over the world.

The devas went to Vishnu and asked what they should do. Vishnu said churn the ocean of milk to get nectar of immortality. So, the Devas made a deal with the Asuras to churn the ocean of milk together and share the nectar. The Asuras agreed.

They started churning using Vasuki (the snake around Shiva's neck) as the churning rope and a mountain as the churning rod. Together they churned and churned. The mountain started sinking so Vishnu in the form of a turtle(Kurma) helped hold up the mountain. Soon the nectar of immortality appeared from the ocean. The Devas tricked the Asuras and took it all for themselves. This is the story about Samudra Manthan and Vishnu's Kurma avatara.

LORD NARASIMHA

THAT'S HOW WE DO IT IN INDIA By Diara Giri

By Aaradhya Ragunathan

The Ganga river sways with grace,
That's how we do it in India.
The songs we sing spread with melody,
That's how we do it in India.
We worship God with all respect,
That's how we do it in India.
We have the best spices in the world,
That's how we do it in India.
Our mangoes will not be found anywhere else,
That's how we do it in India.
The sweets we eat are the best,
That's how we do it in India.
My love for India will never fade,
That's how we do it in India!
